I feel that the US Gov t cannot keep their mitts off of anything. I feel bad for the U.S. that we should target the entrepreneurial spirit of this country and lambaste the winners of the contest to see who can come out on top. It is to our shame that an outfit like Microsoft (being the biggest boy on the block by far) is hounded by the U.S. s own legal offices. My feelings about this whole incident lean towards the abstinence of the corporate entity in the marketplace from today on. In other words MS would close their doors from this point on retire those people that they can furlough those people that can t be retired and shut the doors. If the U.S. infrastructure begins to fail so be it. The justice dept. caused the whole thing. If the entire economic structure of the U.S. is placed in jeopardy because of this incident maybe the DOJ will put noses up their own a instead of into other peoples businesses.
